Proposal 1:

The screenshot shows a Windows Internet Explorer browser window displaying the New York State Police website. The address bar shows <http://troopersdev/>. The website header includes the New York State Police logo, the text "Division of State Police", and the motto "To serve, protect and defend the people while preserving the rights and dignity of all." It also features portraits of Governor Andrew M. Cuomo and Superintendent Joseph D'Amico, along with navigation links like "Home", "About NYSP", "Site Map", "Contact Us", and "FAQs".

The main content area features a central graphic for the "2013 National Missing Children's Day Poster Contest". The graphic depicts the Statue of Liberty in a stylized, colorful manner, with the words "MISSING CHILDREN" and "LOVE" written in a bubbly font. The background shows a city skyline with buildings in various colors.

To the left of the main content is a "Navigate this site" menu with the following items: Academy, Counter Terrorism, Crime Prevention, Criminal Investigation, Employment, Firearms, Forensic Science, Introduction, NYS Criminal Justice Links, Public Information Office, Publications, Request Government Records, SafeNYS/Crime Watch, Schools and Communities, Specialized Services, Ticket Inquiries, Traffic Safety, Traffic Management, and Wanted and Missing.

To the right of the main content are several sidebar boxes: "Latest News" with a link to www.nyspnews.com; "Wanted & Missing" with a "MISSING: Cuccia, Valarie Lorraine" entry; "NY SAFE Act" with a "Your NY SAFE Act Questions Answered" link and phone numbers (1-855-LAWGUNS and 1-855-529-4867); and "ESLETS Conference" with a logo.

Below the main content, there is a "Trooper Candidates:" section with the text: "We conducted a Trooper Candidate processing on September 22 and 23, 2012 at the NYSP Academy. We reached the rank of 6,196 for this processing. Valid candidates up to that rank, who were not in a deferred status, were invited."

The browser's status bar at the bottom shows "Done", "Local intranet", and a zoom level of "100%".
